To whom it may concern,

I am writing to recommend Mr. Harsh Suvarna as a prospective graduate student for your programme. As a Designated Partner of D'vastra, we have mentored and managed him during his contract period, where he worked as a Backend developer, and we've had numerous opportunities to observe him closely during that time. Harsh has been a valuable asset for us since day one and always brings joy to the office with his positive aspect of viewing life. His experience as the Public relations executive of his college's Entrepreneurship cell helped him immensely in imbibing the entrepreneurial attitude required when working for a startup.

Harsh has always been hardworking and curious. He is always up for learning new technologies as per the requirement of the project. He has ensured that the work on his end is in sync with the given timelines and would go the extra mile if needed. Harsh is very fluid in his communication with his peers and his seniors. His curious mindset makes him ask a lot of questions to understand the task in hand at once. He patiently explains the requirements to the other teams and can explain complex topics systematically. Harsh is punctual and doesn't like wasting his or others' time. Harsh has contributed to developing the D'Vastra app's database schema and has played a significant role in efficiently and systematically planning the flow of data. He is responsible for developing and managing databases, APIs, and 3rd party cloud applications. Working with us, he has gained credible knowledge of the Google Cloud Platform (GCP) and ways of optimizing the cost of services bought, which is very important for a startup. Harsh frequently contributes his ideas and opinions in the business logic, which could help in the success of D'vastra in the long term.

Therefore, I am confident that Harsh will only be an asset to whichever organization he belongs to. His hard work and sheer dedication make him a valuable employee. I wish him the best of luck in his future endeavors'. Kindly contact me for any further queries.
